Lecturer:

Mr Alexander Vogel is an automation expert at (BSE) Badische Stahl-Engineering GmbH. He started his career in 1989 at Technika GmbH (later Fuchs > VAI > Primemetals) and work since 1998 for the Badische Group. From 1998 to 2005 he was part of the BSW (Badische Stahlwerke GmbH) automation department and has developed the current running level 2 system. From 2005 to 2013 he worked as a division manager at BAG (Badische Ausbildung und Anlagenbau GmbH) and was responsible for the manufacturing of the electric and automation parts for new machines. Since 2013 he is part of the consulting team at BSE. In his current position he makes consulting for electric, automation and maintenance in steel-plants and develops software especially for level 2 and level 3. He also is one of the developers of the new BSE Finite Network System that allows precise simulation of high current systems especially at electric arc furnaces.
